Prevention Engineering

Why take the chance of potential injury to your family or being stranded with a damaged vehicle?

ShuRoo has been helping protect motorists from wildlife collisions since 1986. The unique signal emitted by ShuRoo cannot be heard by humans, but to wildlife it's as loud as a police siren. By taking advantage of their high frequency danger alert system in this way, ShuRoo warns animals of your approach and helps prevent a collision that could potentially harm you, your passengers and your vehicle. Not only does ShuRoo protect you and your family, it also protects our wildlife.

How does it Work?

Under normal circumstances, kangaroos do not hear the low frequency sounds that an approaching vehicle creates.

ShuRoo projects a high frequency sound pattern through a continually changing range of frequencies in front of and to the sides of the vehicle. Because kangaroos use high frequency for warnings of impending danger, they take avoiding action. Or if they are "road tame" and off the road, they will simply watch you pass, but will not approach you.

The one-piece compact design allows for easy installation to cars, RVs, trucks and buses. The new Mk V ShuRoo unit weighs less than one kilogram. It's approximately 330 mm wide, 75 mm high, and 75 mm deep. It's as simple to fit as driving lights; you can do it

PREVENTION IS BETTER THAN CURE!

OVER A MILLION KILOMETRES OF FIELD TESTS, AND COUNTING!

Kangaroo strikes are a real and costly problem to motorists throughout Australia. ShuRoo can save motorists thousands of dollars resulting from repairs and vehicle down time.

ShuRoo can help you reduce the chance of injury or worse.

With OH&S and environmental implications becoming more onerous each year, ShuRoo will assist fleet operators protect their fleet vehicles and people.

Field tests offer the only definitive answer for the efficiency of ShuRoo. Since 1986 many individuals and fleet operators have field tested ShuRoo, testing in the only "laboratory" that counts - the open road.

Brendon Parisot from Total 4x4 tells us why he trusts and recommends ShuRoo...

"We offer Bullbars and Frontal protection to our customer to ensure safe travels to their desired destination. With ongoing design and testing there's only so much bullbars can offer when faced with an animal strike... what more can we do to ensure safety against animal strikes? Shuroo!

We sell Shuroo to support Australian business/Australian made products as well as a much cheaper alternative to a standard steel/alloy bullbar.

On top of that Shuroo's staff and customer service is very pleasing and easy to deal with ensuring your answers are met on your first phone call.

"Of the more than 13,000 animal strikes on NSW roads in 2019, approximately 85 per cent involved kangaroos - a similar proportion to figures from Queensland and Victoria"... these are really scary statistics and what better way to put those worries at ease with a ShuRoo product

With bullbars costing over 2K why not have peace of mind knowing you have approximately 400 metres ahead of, and 50 metres either side of your vehicle protected by a product that cost less than $650. Having the combination of a bullbar and shuroo is the closest you'll get to an ultimate protection package against animal strikes.

To top it off, the fitting of these products are really simple and straight forward... your local autosparky will thank you for bringing him such an easy product to install with only a one piece compact design to work with.

Looking to build your 12V wiring skills? Give it a crack yourself... you'll be surprised how easy these products have been made to install."
